Alma Mater

Alma Mater, hear our singing,
Saint Catherine's High,
Loyalty to you we're bringing,
Saint Catherine's High.
To your loving breast you caught us,
To the founts of truth you brought us,
How to live and die, you've taught us,
Saint Catherine's High.

Alma Mater, hear our praising,
Saint Catherine's High,
Loud our voice in chorus raising,
Saint Catherine's High.
Faith you've taught in ample measure,
Hope you've made a lasting pleasure,
Love for you we proudly treasure,
Saint Catherine's High.

The secret voice of man communes with His God.

HAPPY chatter breaks the daily lunch rush.

WISTFUL pleasantries of friends fill gala evenings.

To the swift pace of another school year was added the mighty onrush of voices. Each sound recorded the heart beat of St. Catherine's High—that all may seek, understand, and live the truth . . .

HERE we sit to let the sounds of music creep on wings of song.

VOICES of American freedoms reach Bob Maushammer and Sue Simanek.

FTAers, Paul Weyrich and Brian Krusienski, president, stir th

A LOUD, lusty cheer comes from Francine Blaha and Carol Rabe.

Each echo, steeped in tradition, yet adapted to current needs, resounded every phase of education. 'Twas the clarion call of Catholic leadership, thinking with the mind of Christ, loving with the heart of Christ . . .

BLACK and White will fight for St. Catherine's High!

JOANNE Majchrowitz re-creates the voice of another language.

LISTENING is a step by which Virginia Bislew grasps a thought.

Hither the sound has borne us—

to the realm of the teacher, the student,

ENRICHED RICHETTA PHILOSOPHY. Tangent to a Catholic standpoint is, "Everything I do should be done for the greater honor and glory of God." Standing: Father Richetta. Identifiable (left to right): Joan Auterman, Margaret Cumicek, William Exterovich, Barbara Bohn.

Commitment to God and Truth

Without God and spiritual values the life of man is lacking a strong foundation — is incomplete.

An intensive four-year religion and guidance program provided each student with a convincing reason for becoming a saint and a scholar. Daily class discussions and occasional reports pointed out man's place in relation to God and his fellowmen. An analysis of the real diginity of a human being strengthened motives for attaining personal integrity through self-knowledge and self-mastery. The teaching of Christ, who held that morality must determine the personal, family, economic, political, and international life of all men, furnished guideposts for right living and correct thinking. Adherence to these truths guaranteed the Catholic student the peace of mind and inner strength necessary to steer the ship of life while it rocked and rolled on its course.

English, a Must for All

The first battery of Tressler tests revealed the English ups and downs.

Grim-faced and determined, students decided to penetrate the massive English barrier by first removing all mental blocks. Studying the literary masters of all ages generated a vague hope that a bit of their gracious style would rub off on their readers. From continual contact with good form, unconsciously a writing style developed.

To set the mood, senior classes built miniature Shakespearean theaters; juniors vied with Scotland Yard in observing minor details for clues.

From the Math Angle

Math applicants stocked up a year's supply of pencils, papers, erasers

Before the ink was dry on September's regis tration forms, the great rush to the book stor had begun. But beginner's luck did not rest i mathematical tools alone. Frequently, hours o juggling dots, lines, signs, and numbers produce highly doubtful answers. Only after the smok of fatigue cleared away, did a wrong sign appea to reduce sheets of hieroglyphics to absolute zero Nevertheless, set-jawed students dogged o month after month. While piles of supplies kep diminishing, math insight, on the other side o the ledger, increased and multiplied.

A 'Break-Through' in Languages

Today tapes, recorders, ear-phones make classic and modern languages available in package size.

When teen-agers acquired a phobia for languages, almost fifty per cent of the student body began studying one or more foreign tongue. Russian, French, German, and Spanish became alive with the installation of a modern language laboratory. New meanings hinged on a sound, an accent, an inflection. Linguists cast off the cloak of self-sufficiency, sat back and respected other people's ideas.

Man's Story, Past and Present

Twentieth century neo-historians found the story of their beginnings rooted in the far-flung past.

Mary Sue Kwas

The social science courses indicated the basic movements and ideas which lay beneath man's long trek through the centuries. Strong contrasts, countered by a striking sameness, dominated the pattern of human activity during ancient, medieval, and modern times. On the scene of the American story, students relived the independence of the Revolution, followed the frontier settlers, spoke up with them for democracy, and advanced to an America grown up and still maturing. An introduction to different thinking responsible for other ways of life sowed seeds of world-mindedness as well as a greater appreciation for one's own country. Sifting fact from opinion, distinguishing fundamental from secondary causes, evaluating opinions influenced by emotion and prejudice established habits of mature and intellectual thinking for daily use.

Space, the Blast Off in Science

By nature man is inquisitive. Curiosity about the world has set the wheels of science in motion.

From an intellectual standpoint, a principal advance in modern times has been made in the growth of scientific and technical knowledge. This in turn stimulated a greater field of research in the utilization of the forces of nature to provide food, shelter, and security. The impact of this movement left its earmark on the academic picture throughout the entire nation.

Caught in the scientific whirlwind, students of St. Catherine's science department settled down to a more serious study of physics, chemistry, advanced science, and biology. Textbooks were brought up to date; the dying embers of math were revived; furrowed brows became more intent on hairline accuracy; tolerance received a raised-eyebrow look. Often the afternoon lab sessions lengthened on into the hours of dusk. Calculating, probing, observing brought to light the darkest secrets of the world.

Artists' Haven in Space, Colors

Seeking new conquests for the mind and spirit, artists awakened the quiet wells of creativity.

In an era of mass production and mass media of communication, there existed a tendency to sit back and accept passively the things which man formerly took pride in doing. Despite this fact, the hunger to create remained an integral part of human nature. To satisfy this desire, schools provided facilities and opportunities for future men and women who would create new treasures of art or lead in the battles against intolerance and injustice. Here the student artist with his hands, materials, and machines explored the realm of creative thinking. He invented, then gave form to his inventions. Slowly he acquired a keen sensitivity for beauty. Slowly also dawned the realization that beauty was in life. It could not be caught, isolated; it could only be lived.

Keyboard Speeds and Symbols

Pupils gained command of business techniques in courses ranging from shorthand to retailing.

Once students crossed the threshold of the commercial department, they made several rapid discoveries. Essential requisites confronted them day after day. Repeated insistence upon speed, accuracy, poise, neatness, personality, and responsibility circled their heads ominously. Charts and machines of all descriptions greeted them. Correct forms and proper procedures were stressed and restressed. Astonishingly enough, the alphabet posed a hindrance to filing and typing exercises. Typewriter bells pealed fateful warnings in the midst of unsyllabifiable words. One by one, however, each difficulty vanished leaving only the business expert.

Imprints of Junior Lore

In every high school exists that class with a yen for the "senior" title.

No different were the Juniors of 1959. With distinction and determination they set forth to probe the complexities of declensions; in history they learned to read between the lines, then wormed their way through mathematical intrigues.

Upperclass Impressions

Day by day they developed habits for their role in school leadership.

The enthusiasm of many classmates melted into one single enthusiasm, for in every club or group there always lurked a junior. A lusty cheer, a wholehearted applause, or a prayerful pause generated an electric force called esprit de corps.

Fact and Fiction

A sampling of spontaneity marks youthful enterprises.

Mingling with their peers, sophomores soon discovered that study was no push button job. By June they had acquired a tone and tempo which designated them as juniors of 1960.

A Resume of Freshmen

Stepping into the high school world, the Freshmen said, "We're staying."

At 1:30 they became the sole occupants of three floors and 51 classrooms. Within a few days they took the daily routine for granted, hurried to classes, and waded through algebra and Latin.

In Sum and Substance

Before long, a perennial problem, lack of time to do so much, arose.

Participating in carefree fun, rooting for the varsity team, surpassing one's ability rating, developing an individual responsibility quotient, all this had to be achieved in one short year.

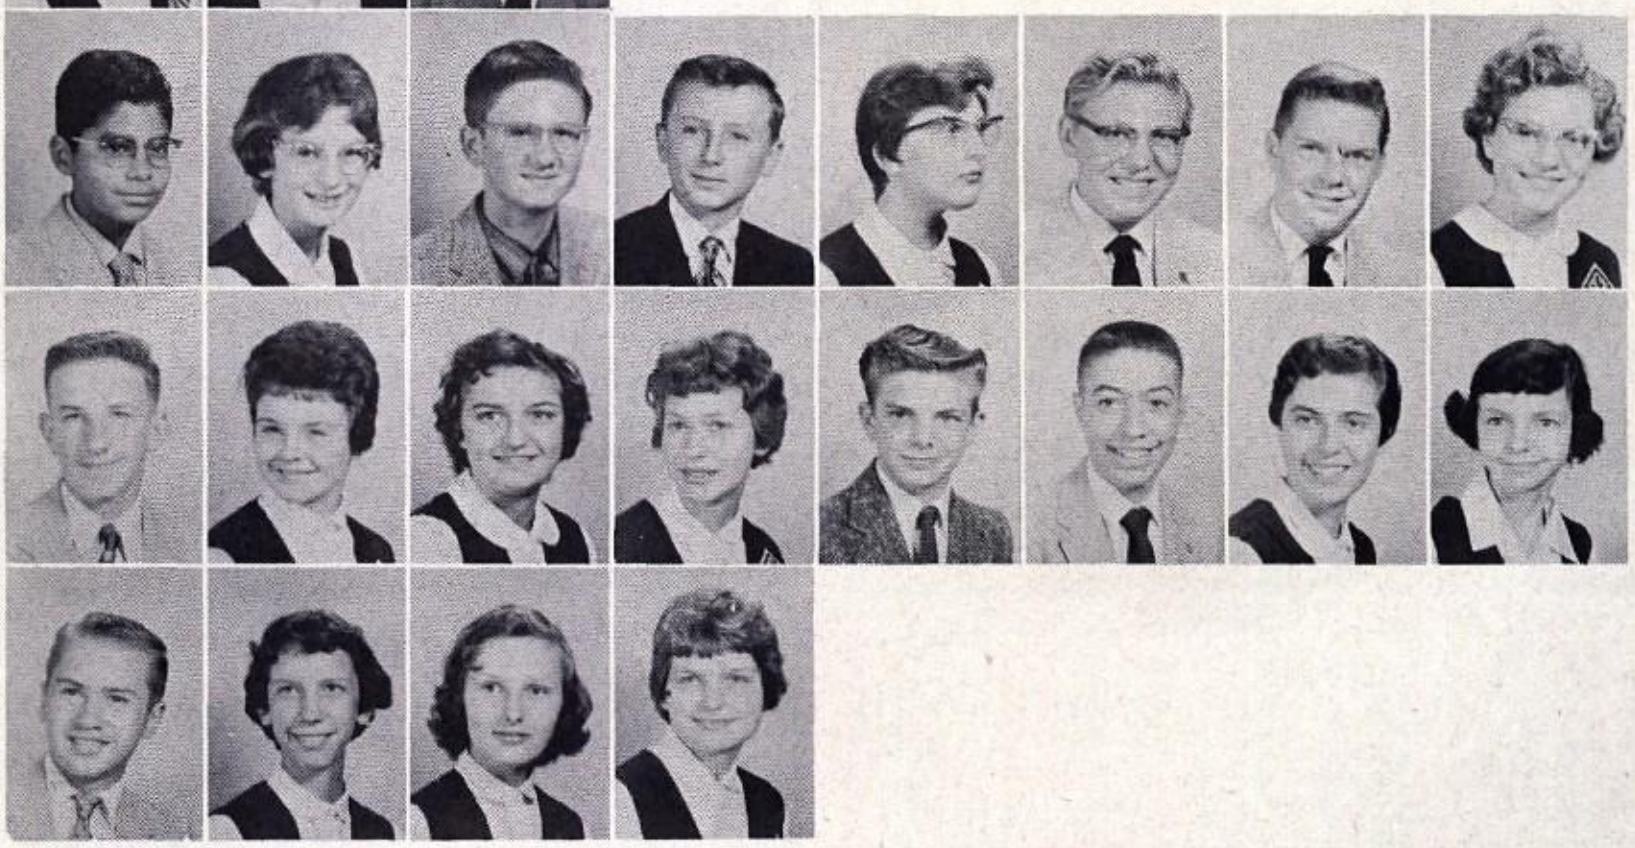
HERE THEY COME. The masses migrate to reach their fourth period class.



Hither the sound has borne us—

to the auditorium, the gym, the cafeteria . . .
to impressive assemblies, where moving speeches stirred the air . . .
to musical moments of song, piercing earth's gladsome sphere . . .
to magical hours woven with the web of mystic measures . . .
to a round of adjustment and leadership . . .

Haunting Notes, Music Makers

Seventy-eight choristers, a seventy-voiced all-girl chorus, and two sophomore groups met dail,.

Under a skillful master's baton, work began for public appearance. Mastery of basic techniques essential to good singing demanded correct posture, controlled breathing, resonance, and articulation. Exercises, focused on these fundamentals, prepared would-be-artists for depth and richness of expression. After repeated and concentrated efforts, long hours and fatigue, music lovers finally revealed a level of proficiency in creativity through the medium of music.

Sweet Singing Charms, A Song

From simple la-la routine to operatic arias, human voices rose and fell in the musical realm of SCHS.

With a quick transition chord, voices swung from easy rolling southern medleys to vigorous, good-humored pop hits. The sweet, gentle faith expressed in Christmas carols modulated into exhilarating tunes from Brigadoon. Deep basses sent vibrations up and down spines; whistling echoes traveled down throats. Rhythm danced in each eye as musical ideas materialized in a bevy of songs and notes. Thus makers of great music sang the year away.

HS CHORISTERS. Front row (left to right): B. Brodek, Herdt, M. Heck, G. Nighbor, D. Nyiri, D. Larsen, N. ebel, M. J. Hazlett, J. Sorenson. Second row: S. Muel-, J. Miller, L. A. Vanderheyden, B. THE VANTAGE POINT. Peter Jansta, who plays the part of the prominent tailor in Brigadoon, makes a few personal observations on the happenings of a single day's events.

LOHENGRIN. Wedding bells ring for Jean MacLaren, Donna Nyiri, and Charlie Dalrymple, Mike Smullen.

In the Highlands of Scotland

Choral groups joined highland lads 'n lassies gathering heather in the valley of Brigadoon.

Scottish clansmen and their plaids, bagpipes and the highland fling set the mood for the 1959 musicale of the SCHS choristers. Two Americans, who became lost while hunting in Scotland, discovered Brigadoon, a mist enshrouded village which by some miracle came to life one day every 100 years. In an intriguing day of adventures, Tommy Albright and Jeff Douglas learned that they were living a day that happened two centuries before. When Tommy returned to Brigadoon four months later, he found more miracles.

ON MACCONNAC SQUARE. Charl Mike Smulle leads the chorus "I'll Go Ho with My Bon Jean."

THE VILLAGE FAIR. Meg Brockie, Francine Blaha, and Andrew MacLaren, Dave Stegner, bargain for plaids with vendor, Joe Bodeau.

SCHOOLMASTER LUNDIE, Lee Dickert, relates the tale of the Brigadoon miracle to Fiona MacLaren, Marcia Simenson, and Tommy Albright, Mike Schulte. Tommy's friend, Jeff Douglas, played by Dan Walsh, is skeptical of miracle stories.

SCOTTISH CEREMONIAL. Harry's father, Peter Jansta, bagpiper, Leo Ebinal, and Marilyn Visek, Maggie Anderson, mourn the death of Harry Beaton in the traditional ritual of mourning.

Music under Opferkuch's Baton

In a full year of music Mr. John Opferkuch's band started feet a-tapping and hands a-clapping.

To enrich the quality of performance, the SCHS band included among its 57 pieces an oboe, a piccolo, a bassoon, a bass clarinet, and a baritone sax. At the annual homecoming festivities, snappy squads stepped jauntily to "Ten-shun! Forward march!" Alert and on cue trumpeters heralded celebrities at special assemblies. Flutists kept sweet haunting notes chasing each other through Brigadoon. At Extravaganza time bass players mustered all the wind they had for deep tones well-accented, then shadowed by drum thumpers.

Under the Mantle of Our Lady

The Sodality of Our Lady offered a way of life which guaranteed saints, scholars, salvation.

Since the last appraisal on judgment day will be based upon the spiritual and corporal works, Mary-lovers made certain that they would be on the side of those to be commended. Working together as a group and also as individuals, Sodalists noted how many good deeds in each category they could carry out. This apostolate brought six different units together each week to lay plans and then see them through to the finish. Further ways and means "to Jesus through Mary" came in the form of a Sodality Recollection day, regular SUMA meetings, the annual Wisconsin Catholic Action Convention, and the yearly SSCA for Sodalists of the nation; for wherever Mary was, there Sodalists were sure to go.

In This Journalism Business

Love of printer's ink and a bit of reporter's blood yielded the familiar Shield and Lance.

Each day's slow, but measured progress predicted a 1959 Lance. From its will-o-the-wisp stages to the final published copy, yearbook staff members chalked down one deadline after the other. Crackling sheets of killed copy forecast another rewrite job. The steady beat of the typewriter, interspersed with Lance lingo, kept apace with copyfitters space-counting heads. Meanwhile, in the Shield department each month copy writers picked up their weapons to pursue quixotic ideas. With the editor's blue-pencilling added to the printer's genius, well-scarred hot copy appeared in another snappy looking issue of the Shield.

Miss St. Catherine Crown Ball

All clubs selected eligible young misses to compete for the cherished honor of each school year.

Myriad facets from the rotating crystal ball chased one another merrily during "Frosty Fantasia." Amidst the colorful array Doug Sorenson, emcee for the gala affair, welcomed twenty-three hopeful candidates to the 1959 Press dance. Happy couples, strolling from silhouette to silhouette, conjectured the lucky Miss St. Catherine title bearer. Gay lights played mischievously upon a tense crowd which waited for the presentation of the lady of the evening. Tension mounted when the contents of the sealed envelope revealed Carol Seeger and Judy Coates as the ladies-in-waiting. The silence intensified, but suddenly it shattered with the declaration: "Carol Rabe — Miss St. Catherine of 1959! Congratulations!"

Player Cue Sheets and Plots

SCHS Players' callboard plunged Thespians into the show business early in the season.

After the casting for Aladdin and His Wonderful Lamp was over, scripts were read and reread; moods were established; rehearsals began. Then followed the magic word "Curtain" and the show was on. From somewhere applause was ringing. Slowly dawned the realization that the play was over. Next, Players exchanged oriental trappings for the lowly dress of the humble folk of Bethlehem in the Nativity scene. When the Brigadoon tumult and shouting died down, after the compliments of the year had been gathered, the clean up crew took over. Within a few hours no trace of a production remained, only memories of show business.

Taking a Stand With Debaters

The Lincoln Debate Club countered adversaries with hard facts and systematic reasoning.

In another year of contest debating, SCHS debaters gathered in many conferences to study the 1958-59 question, Resolved: The United States should adopt the essential features of the British system of education. From the cross fire of thinking out loud, ideas emerged. Often, arguments which appeared good at first collapsed like a bubble. Utilizing further research techniques plus more hot sessions, Lincolnites compiled additional material to build a sure case. Next, they developed and practiced their speeches. Finally, the Lincoln Debate Club members were ready to meet the opponents on the platform of the National Forensic and Midwest Catholic Speech League tourneys. Here arguments instead of brawn and muscle were employed. The clash of ideas provided a stimulating experience as the debaters marshalled their points to make the best case for their side. Strong evidence, clear logic, and convincing reasons helped St. Catherine debaters to hammer away at the weaknesses of their opponents. While hosting the state NFL tournament in March, the varsity debaters also won second place.

Officers: Jeanne Ermert, president; Virginia Becker, vice president; Katie Johnson, secretary.

Forensic Word Wizards' Skill

Troupe of ten lost themselves in their roles, studied them, then re-created them for others.

Shiftings from a rich, booming tone to a thin, whining voice frequently punctuated Forensic Club practice sessions. To impersonate characters, to reveal the numerous facets of personality demanded ceaseless rehearsals from youthful jugglers of words. Saturday jaunts to oratorical tourneys not only staged keen competition, but also provided an occasion for growth in elocutionists' fellowship. Battling for coveted "firsts," SCHS participants carried off a sweepstake trophy at an invitational tournament sponsored by St. Patrick's, Chicago. High point earners in the club included Patricia Bushell, serious declamation; Patsy Joy Peters, Sue Christensen, humorous declamation. St. Catherine's speechmaker continued polishing selections for the spring MWCSL and NFL tourneys.

Youth in Government Councils

Students of democracy dedicated themselves to a study of national government problems.

In a democratic society there exists the possibility that government, being everybody's business, will be nobody's business. To make government their business, Better Government Council members joined fifteen other high school units each month in mock Congress sessions. Caryl Nelson was elected vice-president of the combined units; Carol Rabe, chairman of the local SCHS unit. To this session St. Catherine presented the question of counter attack for the "Ruble War," which was finally rejected by the council. Other problems facing the nation and the state were presented by the various units. Thus, intelligent democratic citizens learned to tolerate legitimate differences, as well as to consider the welfare of the nation at large.

READERS FIFTEEN. Club R-15ers' Literary Circle

Invading book galleries, reading fans stirred intellectual currents with questions and ideas.

It did not take long before R-15, the exclusive reading club restricted to fifteen seniors, discovered what made authors tick. Chairman Barbara Smigun called monthly meetings in order to break the sound barrier of famed apostles of the pen as Louis de Wohl, Thomas Merton, Lucille Bordon. Through these penned "voices of the soul", messages of Catholic thinking and knowledge stimulated a consciousness of works Catholic in tone and authorship.

Postmarked for Library Club

From the vast deposits of the ages, book stowaways opened doors of multi-lateral interests.

A library staff of thirteen members serviced book lovers and fact finders all hours of each school day. Early morning and after school rush hours kept date due stamp and ink pad operators working at top speed. Working with all types of people under varying circumstances demanded Dr. Jekyll-Mr. Hyde personalities from book chargers. Other persistent club members dogged the heels of chronic forgetful book borrowers until the accumulated fine tinkled into the cash box. Assistants unearthed centuries of knowledge, then passed on to others the wisest words of wisdom.

Shafts of light from the brilliance of the Sun King's reign still brightened the paths of mortals. Within its radiance the French Club took a panoramic view of France's colorful costumes, romantic language, and quaint customs. Club members wandered through distinctive chateaux, dwelt in a gourmet's paradise. Groups meandered from magnificent cathedrals to small bookstalls on the banks of the Seine. They paused in wonder on the peaks of the Alps or gazed out over the blue Mediterranean. All this the French Club had for the asking through colorful pictures, records, and books.

Junior Classical Latin League

Earnest scholars of classical language found new interests in contributions of the Romans.

The Latin Club reorganized as the Junior Classical Latin League in order to become affiliated with the national organization for the promotion of Latin among students. Forty-two pledges strove to gain the required points entitling them to a lifetime membership in the league. Skit rehearsals and contests added to Christmas caroling and ice skating combined cultural enrichment with entertainment. Through pictures, literature, and history, club members took holiday jaunts through the rugged boot-shaped country. Centuries of charm recorded in fiction and fact lived again when the league o' Latin set foot on Caesar's soil at monthly meetings.

Inspiration, A Legacy for FTA

Into the ranks of Catholic educators stepped plebes, members of Future Teachers of America.

FTA explorers discovered new challenges in the field of service to others. Curiosity spurred FTAers on to find out what and where the needs existed and how they could be met. In practical experiences potential educators realized the many personal responsibilities imposed on every teacher. Students who had fallen behind in their lessons because of illness, the student who needed additional help, all found a friend in any FTA representative. National Education Week prompted several members of the club to discuss the importance of education over a local broadcasting station. When spring came, pledges were duly bagged, then hula-hooped into the more serious business of the organization.

Secretarial Skills and Thrills

In buzz sessions Secretaries, Inc., defined goals and purposes to achieve stenographic perfection.

In carrying out duties which constituted routine measures of future office workers, Secretaries, Inc., previewed the business world. Through the management of the financial and clerical phase of the Play-Prom project they participated in actual secretarial operations. Returns, forms, and letters had to be checked and rechecked for an errorless report. A field trip to Western Printing emphasized the importance of efficiency, speed, and accuracy in the record keeping of any organization. Christian ethical principles united with desirable personality traits ruled a way to success.

Plans of Happy Homemakers

Future Homemakers of America predict family happiness through home management program.

Acquiring further knowledge of home economics for enriched Christian family living prompted Future Homemakers of America to reorganize. Boasting a grand total of forty-nine members, the organization elected for its officers, Sue Salbreiter, president; Pat Cieslukowski, Barbara Brehm, treasurers; Jean Herdt, Mary Ann Henken, co-chairmen. The club invited beauty consultants to discuss the proper use of make-up and florists to demonstrate artistic arrangements of floral pieces. For a spring style show FHA seamstresses created fascinating ensembles to close a fitting season.

With Hostess Club Elegance

With a pretty table and a festive atmosphere the Hostess Club seasoned service with charm.

Another banquet indicated check-in time for the Hostess Club. After the preliminary warm up chatter, teams of young maidens dispersed to perform their assigned task. One group arranged festive table settings, another added glamorous touches to salads, while still another prepared tempting desserts. When the guests had arrived and were ready, many hands served piping-hot dishes of savory food straight from a busy kitchen. Each mademoiselle moved about with a pleasant sophistication involved in that certain "know how" of any smart hostess. Each occasion concluded with the conversion of dainty misses into an efficient clean up squad.

Officers: Mary Kuypers, president; Mary Dacquisto, vice president; Sue Kwas, secretary; Kathy Grant, recording secretary; Jeanette Verwey, historian; Kathy Jacobson, treasurer.

Bi-Phy-Chem in Science Orbit

Science moved on to encourage open-mindedness, foster cautious judgment, cultivate curiosity.

Curious St. Catherinites gathered bi-monthly to discuss the latest in the scientific headlines. Here, too, they scrutinized and questioned reports on developments and progress of individual experiments. Officers outlined plans for the annual Science Fair; entrants analyzed the progress of their proposed projects. Field trips to a power plant and a pharmaceutical house provided opportunities to observe science in action within the community. Through a continued study of the physical phenomena, the club hoped to inspire talented students to direct their resources scienceward.

Men alive! To keep a large student body moving, to see that each one had a place, to prevent congestion or confusion was a man-sized job assigned to the Ushers Club. To qualify it was necessary to be a gentleman who was alert and who could cope with any eventuality. Repeated assemblies showed that senior housemen were able to assume adult responsibilities professionally. Besides extending their service to the student body, the Ushers Club assisted on freshman registration days and on occasions involving the use of the auditorium by various local groups. Schedules and post of duties were arranged and assigned by president of the club, Dave Verheyen, assisted by Donald Schinkowitch, secretary.

Touchdown Muscles and Brawn

SCHS gridmen rolled to second place when seven wins, one loss dashed four championships' hope.

In the season's opener SCHS with its all new backfield romped over Chicago St. Mel's 47-12. Fast touchdown punches provided the knockout. The first loss in over three years of conference play befell the Angels when Pius XI subdued them 49-19. Until the fourth quarter the Popes ran the St. Catherine ends ragged; then the Angel gridders took to the air with an aerial barrage. On the rebound from the Pius fray, the Angels trimmed Messmer 25-2. Clad with an iron-strong defense the SCHS gridmen hit paydirt repeatedly. Next St. Catherine greeted its new neighbor, St. Joe's, Kenosha, with not too welcomed 46-14 victory.

Continuing to build up steam, the Angel boilers exploded when homecoming gridmen sent Marquette off with a 19-13 loss in their pocket. In a no opposition 60-0, forty-one Angel players mauled Dominican of Whitefish Bay. Slow starting, but with power a-plenty, the Angels trampled Cathedral 46-6. The third and fourth quarter saw the game break wide open with the Black and White scoring TD's almost at will. The Angels, with an exceptional defense holding the line, finished the season by downing the Dons 39-6.

Slugfests yielded three-base wallopers, sack-touchers who slid into home plate with a "Safe!"

Four lettermen returned to the diamond at the opening of the baseball season. The SCHS nine made many an attempt to bring home a win, but failed to carry the deciding score. Don Tempesta, a 5′6″ shortstop and second baseman, made a name for himself by capturing the Conference batting crown with a .559 average. All in all, Coach Eddie Race's ball club lacked its traditional top performance leaving an unimpressive conference record.

Hoopsters, Hardboard Pacers

What a hoopster season! Coach McGuire's cagers marked regional, state, national tournaments.

In the opening tussle SCHS hoopsters jumped to victory over Lutheran. Proceeding on to conference schedules, the Angels victimized St. Joseph and Dominican, two new conference members. A non-conference vacation first demanded, then yielded a bow to and from Pulaski and Premontre respectively. Angel offensive patterns and scoring sprees bewildered Don Bosco, while a supposed struggle turned into a complete shamble when the McGuire men tangled Marquette. As the balls continued to find a home in the cords, Messmer and Memorial made vain attempts to break a St. Catherine scoring streak. At midseason Notre Dame was able to seize a win, but the Angel cagers routed a hopeless Lutheran and a stymied Cathedral. Pius and St. Joseph also bowed.

On Angel Championship Court

Warring Angels finished conference play by claiming an unpredicted championship crown.

After Dominican, St. Bonaventure, and Don Bosco were unable to pry the lids off their baskets, a fired-up Marquette squad precipitated a second conference defeat for the Angels. But the Angels kept going. Messmer's shooting went to pieces; Memorial bowed low; Notre Dame wings were clipped; St. Bonaventure was felled in the blistering pace. After further victories over Cathedral and Pius, were completed, the conference slate set forth SCHS co-champs with Marquette.

On the Angel squad went to overpower Notre Dame and St. Bonaventure for the regional tournament berth. Not content with conference and regional titles, the Angel ball club defeated Superior Cathedral, St. John Cathedral, and St. Mary, Menasha for a second consecutive state title.

National recognition pounced on the Angels when they received an invitation to the Sixth Annual National Catholic Invitational Scholastic tournament in Washington, D.C. After losing the first game, they sprung back to return home as consolation champs.

Girls' Sports in Race of Time

Pep, power, and points brought many athletic-minded girls the reward of success, happiness.

A sports-filled year found a sports-minded crowd headed for the courts, the pools, or the wide open spaces. Basketballs swished through hoops, ball glided down the alleys, and ping-pong balls clicked back and forth across the net. Feminine jockeys steeplechased across the country side; swanlike girls slipped softly through clear blue waters. Tournament time tried fair play and good sportsmanship, tested skills and achievements, the yielded trophies and pins — awards for accomplishment in the world of sports.

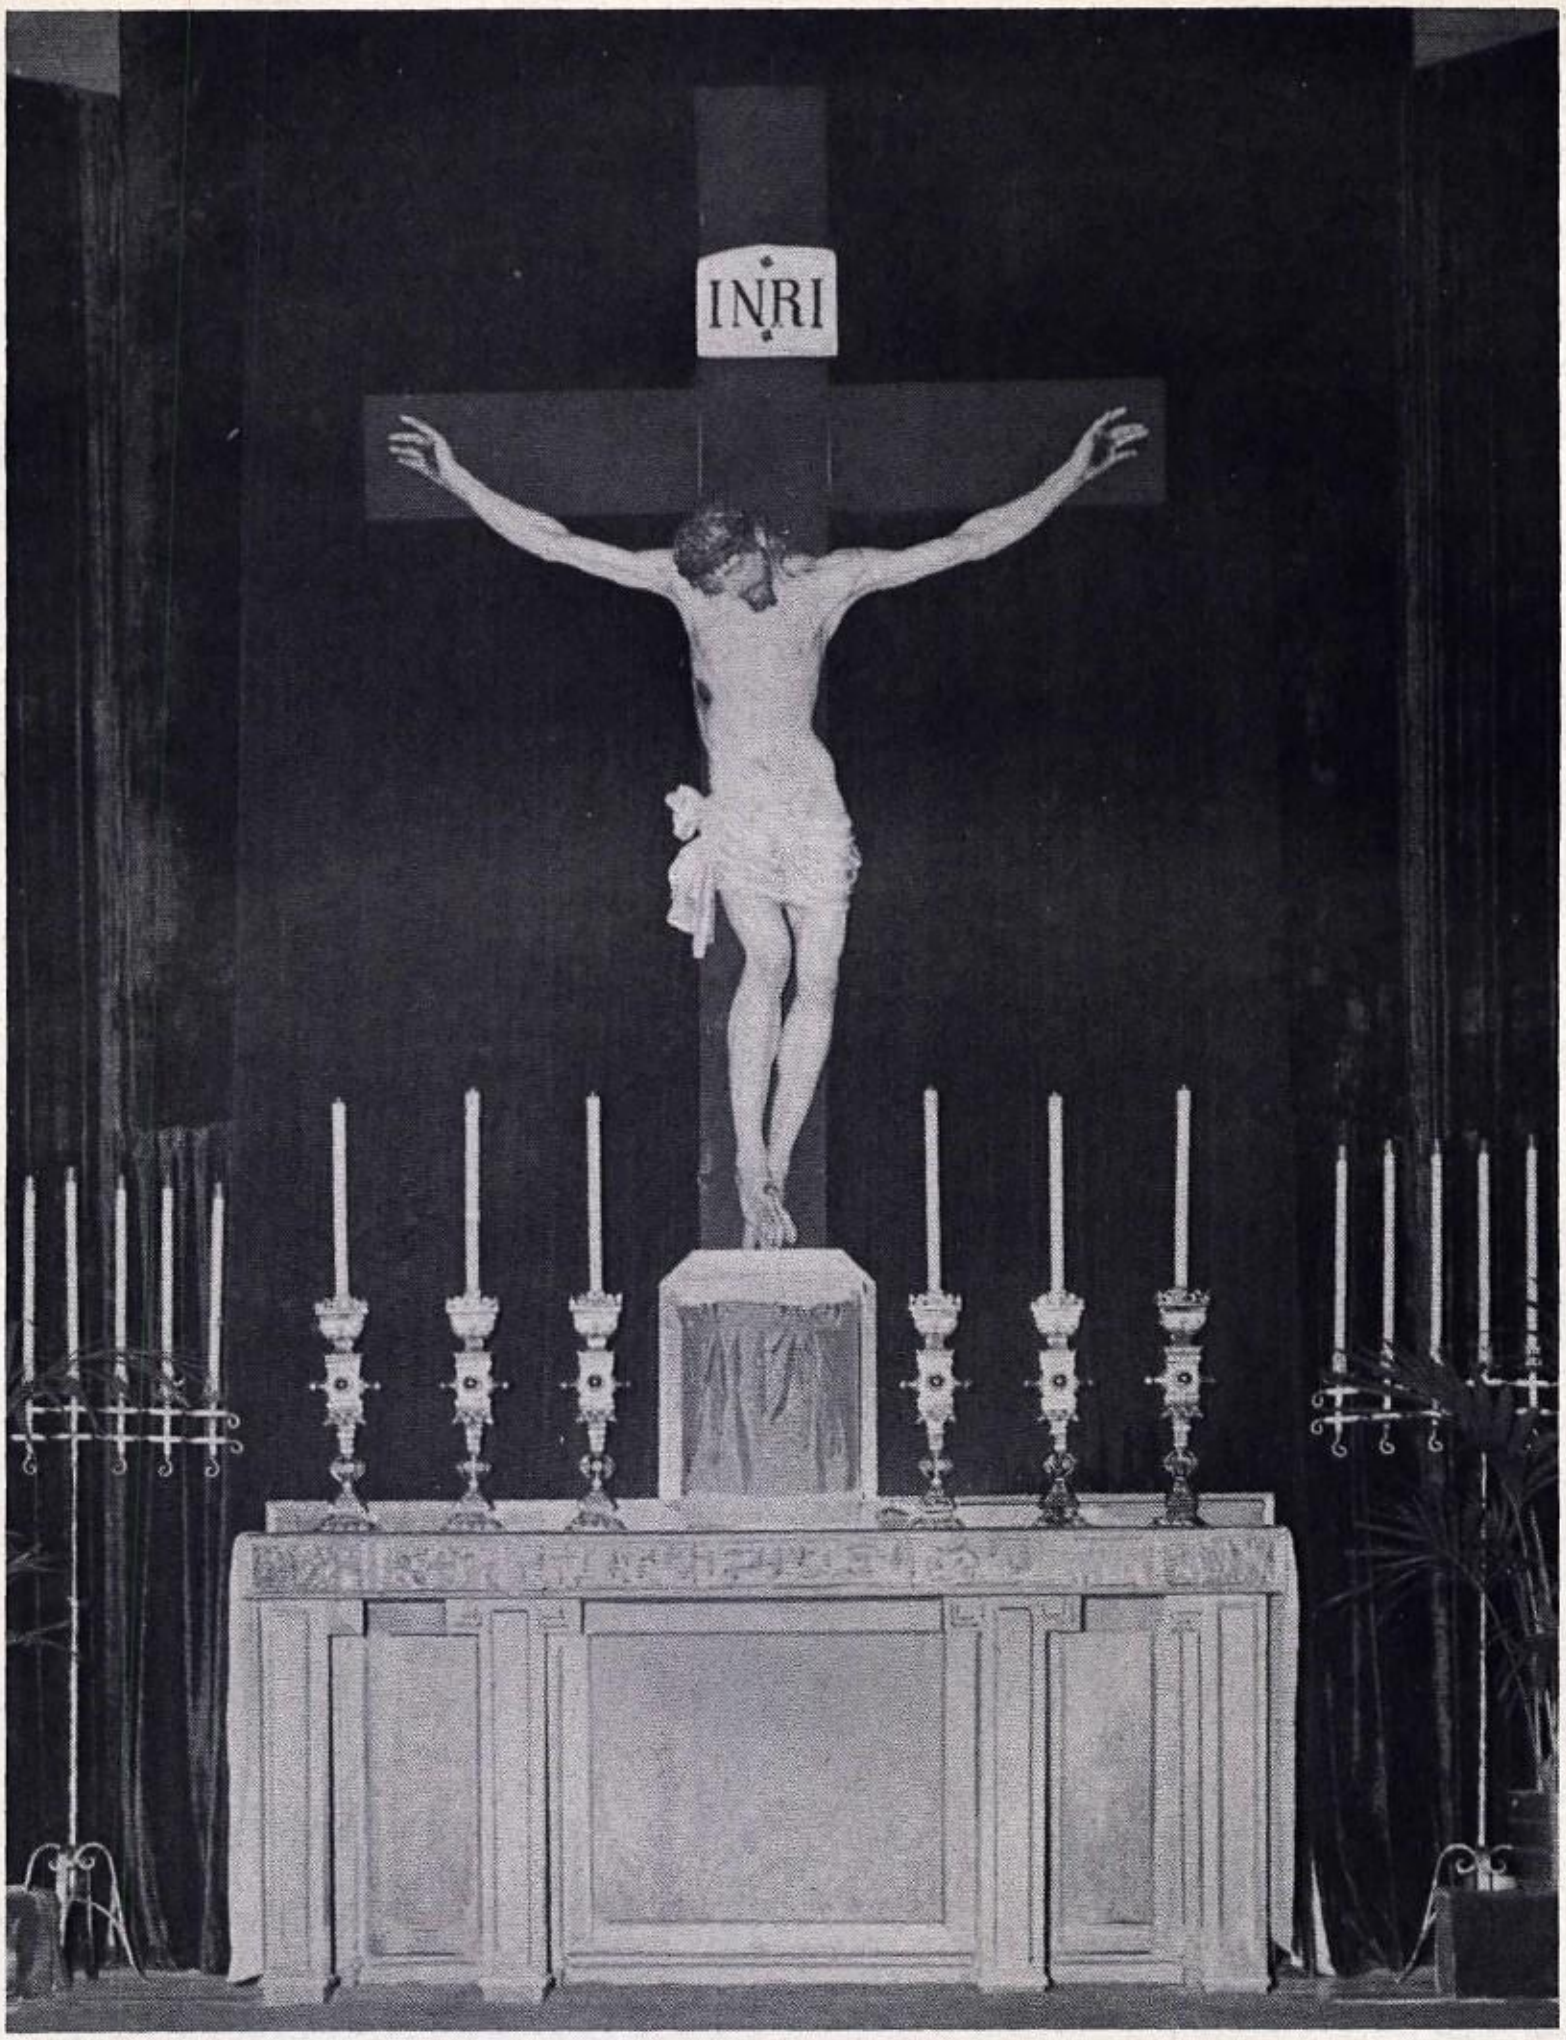
The Senior Class of 1959



"The peaks attained by man's immortal soul,
Are reached by thoughts that mount with eagle wings,
Born of high dreams and living that is whole,
Girded with truth, freed from all sordid things,
On wings of Spirit man achieves the goal;
Forgetting self with Faith at the control."

— J. Mitchell Pilcher

HAMMERSMITH-KORTMEYER CO.
MILWAUKEE

Dear Mrs. Haas.

I've enjoyed this year very much. I'm glad I had you for a Latin teacher. I hope the future will continue to bring you more happiness. God bless you and your family. I hope to see you next year.

Laurie Palermo

Dear Mrs. Haas,

I sincerely enjoyed having such a wonderful Latin teacher, & I hope I will at least be able to see you & say "hi" next year. Thanks for having all that patience.

Pam Johnson

To a swell Latin teacher
From a girl who didn't show much from your dulling. But it was my own fault & I wish
I had learned that before.

Lots of Luck
Cathie
Maier

Dear Mrs. Haas,
I wonder would it be over nice having such a wonderful person as a Latin teacher. Bless you.
Martha
Evans

Mrs Haas,
I'm very glad I met
you and had you for Latin this year. You've been very patient and kind.
I only wish I could have you
for a teacher next year.
Lots of luck always!
God Bless You!
Wendy Allen

Mrs. Haas,
I'm glad I had you for a Latin teacher this
yr. although "I" wasn't such a terrific student you still did a swell job.
God Bless you.
Rocke Calvelli

Dear Mrs. Haas,
Thanks - you were very much fun as a teacher. You are a wonderful person and made Latin very enjoyable & exciting. I will miss your teaching next year. Best of luck in the future.
Any hope you may have
Tommy Favata

Kathy Kalb

Dear Mrs. Haas,
I've really enjoyed you as my Latin teacher. You've made me realize the value of Latin. Thank you so very much.
Your Latin Student
Jane Bellamy

Dear Mrs. Haas,
I have been very glad to have had you for my Latin teacher. You have made Latin very interesting and enjoyable. I wish you the best of luck in the future.
Sincerely,
Mary Ellen Blemaster '61

P.S. Thanks for the encouragement.

Dear Mrs. Haas,
I've really enjoyed you as my Latin teacher. You've made me realize the value of Latin. Thank you so very much.
Your Latin Student
Jane Bellamy

Dear Mrs. Haas,
I have been very glad to have had you for my Latin teacher. You have made learning about the Romans, who I thought were dead, very interesting.
Sincerely,
Mary Ellen Blemaster '61

P.S. Thanks for the encouragement.

To Mrs. Haas who has succeeded in making me give up any hope of learning Latin! Seriously I was happy and am grateful for help
John Albert '61

Dear Mrs. Haas,
You are one of my very favorite teachers. Have fun during the summer.
Karen Karpie

Dear Mrs. Haas,
It has been swell knowing you. I learned something but not a lot. Have fun during the summer. Lots of luck always
Rose Mutchie

Dear Mrs. Haas,
It has been nice having you as my Latin teacher and thanks for all you tried to teach me. I'm a Latin student but Charlotte, she's a wonderful person and a swell Latin teacher. Thanks for all the help you gave me.
Pat Conway "61"

Dear Mrs. Haas,
I'd like to thank you for putting up with me a quarter
Ronnie Kanestrom

Gratias tibi ago for teaching me Latin and being patient with my talking and forgetting assignments.
From a fellow-north-sider.
Carol Nelson
